INTOLERANT SUFFRAGETTES

That was a stinging rebuke President Taft delivered to the hissing suffragettes, who, like most of their sex engaged in movements which ladies should steer clear of, are both intolerant and absurd. These women, who so far forgot their manners and the respect due the President of the United States as to insult him when he uttered sentiments antagonistic to their cause, are fair samples of the class of women, taken as a whole, to which of course there are exceptions, who are clamoring and crying for a chance to vote. By their own action in thus insulting the President, who was their invited guest at the time, they demonstrated most conclusively their unfitness for the very thing they wish for. We don't know what the husbands of all these militant suffragists, if they have husbands, think of their suffragette wives, but we suppose they are of the milk and water kind, if they exist at all, and therefore content themselves to stay at home and dandle baby while their vote-wanting wives annoy Congressional committees, insult the President and make themselves generally ridiculous. That an apology was afterward framed up and sent the President by the officers of the association is something to their credit, but it also serves to emphasize the indignity offered to Mr. Taft. Women have a sphere in which they should be content to move and it is not a narrow one at that. Luckily most of them are sensible enough to appreciate this fact and to let well enough alone, but it seems that there are some, and a few of these latter unfortunately reside in Virginia, who seek notoriety through the medium of the suffragette movement. Can't Congress or the State Legislatures regulate these females?

There is no real good reason why farmers in every section of Virginia, with some few exceptions, should not produce enough corn, hay and other food stuffs for their own use, and yet they not only do so, but in most sections large quantities are purchased every year. A correspondent tells us that large quantities of corn, milk feed and hay are being purchased by farmers along the Rappahannock river and delivered to them by steamer from Baltimore. While there is some excuse for this year, on account of the exceedingly dry season last summer, it unfortunately is the case to some extent in normal seasons, and there is no excuse for it. Virginia lands, under proper management, are capable of producing as much grain and hay as is needed in the State, and it speaks poorly for Virginia farmers, because of mismanagement, that they are forced to pay continual tribute to Western grain fields. This is a case of waste, which can be remedied, and it should be.

Greater Richmond and Lesser Manchester are now assured relatives.

OYSTER INSPECTORS APPOINTED

The State Board of Fisheries at Norfolk Friday appointed 52 oyster inspectors. Many of the old inspectors were dropped, but new ones were made on others. Among the appointments, passed by Gloucester county—C. H. Muse, J. H. Nye, L. M. Byrnes, King George county—M. L. Price, King and Queen county—W. A. Post, King William county—O. P. Chilton, Lancaster county—E. G. Groomham, J. C. Brewington, R. W. Doggett, Mathews county—J. W. Minter, W. H. Gale, J. T. Christian, Gloucester county—E. D. Moore, A. E. Sagar, J. S. Chandler, Northumberland county—J. B. Hudson, M. L. Dodson, M. Blackwell, Albemarle county—E. D. Smith, Richmond county—O. D. Hale, Westmoreland county—J. T. Hudson, Geo. D. Chandler, W. C. Minor.

NEVER SUCH GLUT OF FISH KNOWN TO VIRGINIA

Never has there been known such a catch of shad and herring in the waters of Virginia, and three thousand big nets as many boats and crews are working day and night to gather in the crop. Some of it is hardly worth the gathering, and many fishermen pray that the run of herring would stop and give chance to better fish getting into the traps. Six of the biggest menhaden fertilizer factories have started up in order to utilize the surplus herring, and they are running day and night to their fullest capacity with a dozen big steamers conveying the herring from the traps. But for their premature opening, millions of surplus herring would have to be turned overboard, to drift ashore and become a stench. Virginia Citizens, Irvington.

CAPT. KENT

It is said there is little probability of Capt. W. P. Kent accepting the place of counsel to St. Johns, New Brunswick, recently tendered him by the president. It is a position inferior to that formerly held by him as consul general to Guatemala and paying fifteen hundred dollars a year. Capt. Kent was offered his old place back, which he resigned to be the republican candidate for governor of Virginia, but he did not care to return to the Central American country. Congressman Slemmons and others are trying to get Capt. Kent something better.

AVIATORS KILLED

Four Perish When Lightning Hits Balloon.

STRUCK AT GREAT HEIGHT

Distorted Bodies of Victims Were Found in a Garden and the Wrecked Gas Bag Was Hanging in a Tree.

Berlin, April 18.—The balloon De-Itzsch, belonging to the Bitterfeld Aero club, was struck by lightning during a violent storm. The four occupants were killed. The exact circumstances of the catastrophe can never be known, for the only evidence are the wrecked balloon and the scattered bodies of the men, who met their fate unseen, without the possibility of human help. It was a calm, clear evening when the De-Itzsch rose in the air at Bitterfeld, and the occupants were enthusiastic over the perfect conditions for a night trip. Herr Luft, a Bitterfeld merchant and an experienced amateur balloonist, and Pilot Lueschger, an expert aeronaut, were well qualified to balance any lack of experience on the part of their companions, two Leipzig merchants named Grounper and Hoecker.

A moonlight night of rare beauty and calmness followed the fine evening, and about 9 o'clock a fierce storm, which gathered with extraordinary suddenness later.

Found Dead Men in His Garden.

Early Sunday morning a resident of Retschenbach, about six miles from Bitterfeld, heard among peals of thunder one crash so loud that he believed lightning had struck a house, but not hearing anything further likely to support this belief he went to sleep again. Going out after daylight he was startled to find a wrecked balloon and four distorted bodies of men lying in his garden. The bag of the balloon was ripped and torn in an amazing fashion. It was hanging in a tree, through the boughs of which the men had evidently fallen. The smashed car of the balloon was near the dead bodies.

From the condition of the bodies and the deep depressions in the ground it was evident that they had fallen from a great height. It also became apparent upon examination that the disaster was due to lightning striking the balloon. Whether it also killed the occupants is not quite certain, but there were sufficient indications to encourage the belief that they were spared the awful experience of falling alive to their death.

Herr Lueschger was engaged to steer the balloon through the passage route from Munich to Oloron, which will be inaugurated shortly.

The disaster, following others that have lately happened in Germany, incidentally illustrates the enormous risks given to aeronomics in the empire. Initially due to Count Zeppelin's example, the government's aim to lead the world in aerostatics has infected the country with light fever, and besides official and commercial enterprises, riding in the air has become a fashionable craze. Every large town has now a balloon, and accidents are so constant that accidents are likely henceforth to be as frequent as automobile disasters.

TWAIN'S DAUGHTER ARRIVES

Hurries from Europe to Be at Bed-side of Sick Mark Twain.

Redding, Conn., April 18.—Samuel L. Clemens (Mark Twain), who is seriously ill of angina pectoris at his country seat, Storm Field, passed a restless night, according to his physician, Dr. Robert H. Halsey. Dr. Halsey, after visiting the patient, issued the following bulletin: "Mr. Clemens passed an uncomfortable night, but is resting better. Otherwise his condition remains the same as yesterday."

Mrs. Ossip Gabrilovitch, the daughter of Mr. Clemens, arrived here and went directly to her father's home. She was accompanied by Dr. Halsey, who met her in an automobile at the depot. Mrs. Gabrilovitch, who made a hurried trip from Europe to reach her father's bedside, spent several hours in the sick room. She will remain with her father for several months.

NO STRIKE ON D. L. & W.

Concessions Granted Employees When Strike of 1900 is Called.

Scranton, Pa., April 18.—There will be no strike on the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western railroad. General Superintendent T. E. Clarke has notified Garrettsville and Lee, of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, that his men would abide by the New York Central award. All Lackawanna employees were at once notified to remain at work.

The decision followed the announcement from the Brotherhood headquarters in Cleveland that a strike had been ordered and that the 1800 employees of the Lackawanna would walk out.

TEACHERS' EXAMINATIONS

The uniform examinations for State teachers' certificates will be held in Fredericksburg on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, April 21st, 22nd and 23rd, 1910.

The examinations for both white and colored teachers will be held at the same time and place, in separate rooms of the building. The examinations will commence each day at 9 o'clock and continue until 5 o'clock, with necessary intermission for dinner.

These examinations will be held under the joint supervision of Supt. James Ashby, of Spotsylvania and Stafford, and Supt. Arthur B. Wright, of Fredericksburg, and no other examination will be held in either of the two counties above mentioned. This is done to ensure the best of accommodations to those teachers who have to stay away from home over night to take the examinations. Any teachers who live nearer to the county seat of any other county are at liberty to go there to take the examination. All examinations are the same and count equally, no matter where taken.

HUNS CHEER ROOSEVELT

Ex-President Was Welcomed With Great Enthusiasm.

Budapest, April 18.—Roosevelt's welcome to Hungary surpassed anything he is likely to experience during his whole tour. The crowds and the enthusiasm could not have been greater if the people had been welcoming the savior of the country. Nine addresses of welcome and nine speeches of thanks formed part of the program of Roosevelt's third Sunday in Europe. Leaving Vienna in the morning, an enthusiastic crowd hailed him far and wide. At Pressburg, on the Hungarian frontier, Count Apponyi, formerly Hungarian prime minister, with the mayor, a crowd of citizens and a band of fiddlers, met him.

Count Apponyi then took Mr. Roosevelt and Kermit to an automobile. The fiddlers remained to collect pence.

The little city of Pressburg, now called Bratislava, was a scene of jubilation to a man. The mayor, the local orator and Roosevelt again exchanged speeches. The drive to Count Apponyi's chateau lay through three villages, one Hungarian, one Slovak and one German. The whole population of each turned out to welcome the visitor.

When the chateau was reached Roosevelt took lunch with a few of Count Apponyi's friends. Then there was an automobile ride to another station, which was a repetition of the previous program. The party passed through the village, where the usual crowds had collected and the usual speeches were made.

Budapest gave the finishing touch to the enthusiasm. Rain was falling, but in response to the mayor's appeal the townfolk turned out by the thousands. There must have been 40,000 waiting outside the station in the rain. Scores of men and boys climbed onto the roofs of the cars. A fervent welcome was extended by the mayor and Roosevelt made an eloquent reply.

Roosevelt then proceeded through crowded streets to the hotel, the people cheering and shouting "Long live Teddy." At the hotel he was forced to address the crowd from a balcony.

PAYS DEBT WITH MURDER

Bill of $150 Wiped Out by Killing Gangster's Enemy.

Gary, Ind., April 18.—Murder of one man to settle a board bill owed to another is said to have been committed by Umydrek Ulemek in a cafe in the city of Gary.

Ulemek, a steelworker, was arrested a few days ago at Monaca, Pa., and was brought back to Gary, where the killing took place. He confessed that he shot and killed Michael Rebrich one year ago at the request of Samuel Wojmowich, to whom Ulemek owed $150 for board. He also offered to "forget" the bill if Ulemek would do the killing. Rebrich had incurred the enmity of Wojmowich by winning $40 in a card game and then refusing to play longer.

WESTON ON WALKING

Aged Pedestrian Says Second Mile Is Always the Hardest.

Dunkirk, N. Y., April 18.—Edward Payton Weston, the pedestrian, who is on his way from Los Angeles to New York, stopped here today at this point, addressed an audience in the large auditorium of the Masonic temple. He asserted that he is still young, although his years are seventy-two. He advocated in strong terms walking in the open air as the best exercise for the promotion of mental and physical health. He stated that the second mile of each day's trip to be walked is always the hardest, but by the time the third mile is accomplished the lassitude departs and buoyancy of the whole system is experienced.

PEWS ABOVE SOULS

Woodrow Wilson Scores Protestant Churches.

SPEECH STIRS BANQUET

President of Princeton Also Says Privately Endowed Colleges Are a Menace Because of Undemocratic Teachings.

Pittsburg, Pa., April 18.—President Woodrow Wilson, of Princeton university, startled hundreds of Princeton graduates who listened to his speech delivered at the sixty-fifth anniversary banquet of the Princeton Alumni association of western Pennsylvania. So radical were his views that the ban quetters refused to believe their ears, until President Wilson had verified his quotations as correct after the feast.

In no unmistakable terms President Wilson criticized the Protestant church of the country as caring more for pew rent than for the saving of souls; declared that colleges, such as Princeton, supported by private contributions, were a menace rather than a help to the country, on account of their undemocratic teachings, and in the same breath lauded state educational institutions. He touched lightly upon the Princeton graduate school and intimated he was not in favor of accepting any donations to Princeton to which there was "a string."

"Correctly Quoted, He Says. After the banquet, in response to a question as to whether he had been correctly quoted, President Wilson said:

"While these views of mine may appear socialist, I have said just what I mean. The time has come for an awakening in college life and education. Foremost thinkers of the country agree with my sentiments, and I am sure these sentiments are a great benefit to the country at large."

In the course of his banquet speech President Wilson said:

"The colleges are in the same dangerous position as the churches. I hope that the last thing I will ever be capable of will be casting a shadow on the church, and yet the churches—the Protestant churches, at least—have dissociated themselves from the people. They serve certain strata, certain visible uplifted strata, and ignore the masses whose need is dire. They have more regard for new seats than for soul and in proportion as they seek the respect of their congregations to lift them in esteem, they are lowering themselves in the whole scale of Christian endeavor."

"The colleges are in the same class, looking to the support of wealth rather than to the people. The state university is being lifted in popular esteem and the privately endowed institutions are being lowered. The future for the state university and not for the privately endowed one. The state university is constantly sensitive to public opinion, to the opinion of the unknown man who can vote."

"Strength of the Nation. "Where does the strength of the nation come from? Not from the men of wealth; they have been lifted; their need has been satisfied. It comes from the great mass of the unknown, of the unrecognized, whose powers are being bettered by struggle, who will find in their opinions as they go along in that struggle and who will emerge with opinions equal to their strength, opinions which will rule."

"Most of the masters of endeavor of our day have not come from the colleges, but from the great rough-and-ready workers of the world. College men serve the non-college men; do you realize that?"

"No class can serve America. The great virtue of America does not come from the seats of learning, but in a manner from the hills and the woods and the farms and the factories and the mills rolling on and gaining volume until it comes to us the voice from the homes of the common men. Do these murmurs come into the corridors of the university? I have not heard them."

"I have dedicated my efforts to enlarging the colleges to absolute democratic regeneration in spirit, and I shall not be satisfied until the American people shall know that the men in the colleges are saturated with the same thought that pulses through the whole polity."

Mme. Cavallieri Cables Acceptance of Chanler's Proposal.

CAVALIERI COYLY CONFIRMS

Singer Admits Consent to Marry Robert W. Chanler.

Paris, April 18.—"It looks like an acceptance in principle," said Mme. Lina Cavallieri, the grand opera singer, referring to the cablegrams that have passed between her and Robert W. Chanler, of New York, a grandson of the late John Jacob Astor.

Mme. Cavallieri went on to say that she had sent a message to Mr. Chanler, in keeping with the promise she made prior to sailing for Europe, accepting his proposal of marriage on condition that the marriage take place on his return to New York in the fall. Mr. Chanler replied, the singer said, laughing, "Accepting the conditions unconditionally."

Certain obstacles were in the way of an immediate union, such as pending contracts. "We had to get out of that way," continued Mme. Cavallieri. "I am leaving May 25, for an engagement in St. Petersburg. After that I shall spend three months in Buenos Ayres, and from there probably will return to Paris, going to New York in November."

Mme. Cavallieri was unable to say definitely whether she would sing again in New York before her marriage. Indeed, no arrangements whatsoever would be made pending the coming of Mr. Chanler to Paris.

FOREIGNERS' HOUSES BURNED

Chinese Destroy All Buildings at Chang-Sha Renting by Aliens.

Chang-Sha, China, April 18.—All the foreign-owned buildings in Chang-Sha have been destroyed by fire, with the exception of the British consulate. All the buildings rented by foreigners have been looted. The Chinese officials on Thursday issued a proclamation that they were unable to protect the lives and property of foreigners, and therefore the Chinese government made haste to leave the city. So far as is known no foreign resident lost his life.

The governor of Hu-Nan province, Wou Tehung-Sin, and his son were killed and several other government officials killed. Even a section of the city is in flames. Six thousand foreign soldiers are stationed here, and a few of these protected the governor's house for a time, but soon all joined the rioters.

The following day the disturbances became anti-foreign, this being a strong anti-foreign province. The China inland mission and the Norwegian and Catholic missions were burned. The other missions were destroyed on April 15. The missionaries attached to the American Episcopal Missionary Alliance, the United Evangelical church and the Wesleyan and Yale colleges and the Chinese government made haste to leave the city. They lost all of their effects.

Taft Forgives

Assures Suffragists He Has No Ill Feeling.

PLAN MARCH ON CONGRESS

Will Present Petitions Advocating Amendment to the Constitution Enfranchising the Women of the Nation.

Washington, April 18.—With the blessing of the president of the United States thoroughly repudiated the official expression of the convention's regret and disavowal accepted in gracious spirit by the president, and the whole incident relegated to the domain of "steadfastly forgotten" history, the convention of the National American Woman's Suffrage association resumed its normal atmosphere, and resolutely worked through a business amount of important business. The suppressed excitement when suffragists gathered in groups in the hotel lobbies or wherever they might meet and discussed the hissing incident, gave way to close attention to the interesting program in hand.

The last detail of the smoothing out process was the receipt of President Taft's letter of reply to the apology sent him by the suffragists. In a letter, forwarded to the association's president, Mrs. Frances Squire Potter, the president asked that the whole matter be forgotten as soon as possible, adding that he entertained no ill feelings toward any member of the organization for the unfortunate occurrence. The letter says:

"I beg to acknowledge your favor of April 15. I unite with you in regretting the incident occurring during my address to the association, and I regret it, not because of any personal feeling for I have none on the subject at all, but only because much more significance has been given to it than it deserves, and because it may be used in an unfair way to embarrass the leaders of your movement."

"I thank the association for the kindly and cordial tone of the resolutions submitted, and hope that the feature of Thursday night's meeting, which you describe as one giving your association much sorrow, may soon be entirely forgotten."

Senator Owen, the woman suffrage champion of Oklahoma, was heartily greeted in the lobby, many women taking the opportunity to grasp his hand. In reply to a query, he said:

"I have seen President Taft and he feels no affront. He is a big man and understands the situation perfectly. It was intellectually and morally right for the women to do as they did, but it was politically wrong."

Plan of March on Congress. Arrangements were completed for the presentation to congress of mammoth petitions from every state and territory in the Union advocating an amendment to the federal constitution enfranchising the women of the nation. This is regarded by the delegates as the most important feature of the present convention.

Delegates representing each state and territory, bearing the petitions signed by citizens of their respective commonwealths, will enter automobiles at the hotel where the convention is assembled, and decorated with the banners of their cause, will descend upon the capital, where each delegation will hand its petition to a senator or representative of its state, who have consented to present the document to the two branches of congress.

Mrs. Rachel Foster Avery, first vice president of the Suffrage association, announced that as some senators are absent from Washington and as some representatives are not liberal enough to present the petition in the lower house of the United States legislature, petitions from the states affected by this situation would be put together and laid before congress by members willing to do so. The delegates were very busy interviewing congressmen on the subject, and Mrs. Avery announced that not one of the petitions contained less than 500 signatures.

MINING HOT COAL NEAR FIRE

Ominous Signs as Flames Rage Back of Big Wall.

Grandville, Pa., April 18.—Fire of grave proportions is ravaging Grandville, Pa., located 1500 feet underground at Potts' colliery of the Reading company. The blaze was discovered by a fire boss, and is believed to have been started a week ago, when a shot started a rock which choked the chamber. Behind this rush of hundreds of tons of coal has since burned furiously. Coal loaded from the breast is so hot that it is feared the fire has communicated to the solid mass.
